Brainerd opened the portals that lead into the finals tonight at the Regional Basketball Tournament at Alexandria by defeating the Glenwood champions by the score of 25 to 16 in the second game of the evening.

The score was indicative of the play. The locals started out early in the game to make the game theirs. A lead of four points at the close of the first quarter increased to eight at the half. From then on Brainerd was content to take it easy but always maintaining a fixed lead to keep out of the danger zone. The teams entered the final quarter with the score: Brainerd 20, Glenwood 14.

Appleton also won the right to play in the finals tonight by nosing out the St. Cloud Tech-High aggregation in the last thirty seconds of play on a free throw, the count being Appleton 20, St. Cloud 19.

The outstanding man on the floor in the two games last night was Frank Wise, Brainerd's right forward. He brought down the praises of 1,800 fans in the auditorium with his fast dribbling, passing and brilliant basket tossing ability. He found the Glenwood hoop for six field goals and one free throw for a total of 13 points. LaCourse and Guin also had a good night, the former registering two neat field goals and one free throw and the reliable Guin three field goals and one free throw.

Glenwood found the Brainerd defense a tough one to break through. Welliver and Fuller guarded the fortress in a highly commendable manner, with Gabiou coming in for some fine work in the last quarter.

Brainerd's chances to win the regional tournament tonight over Appleton are about even up. The Appleton team has completed in three recent regional tournaments. Last year they made an impressive showing by winning the tournament and going strong in the state tournament. Appleton has four men on the squad who played in the tournament and state meet last year: Wright, Wallin, Risch and Captain Person, the latter being an all-state guard.

The Brainerd-Glenwood game last night did not cause such excitement as the district tournament clashes at Aitkin with Staples and Crosby-Ironton. The fact that Glenwood won 19 games this year and took only two defeats adds even more prestige to the Brainerd team. It establishes the fact that the 11th District Conference is one of the fastest in the state with such teams as Brainerd, Crosby-Ironton, Wadena and Staples playing an equal brand of snappy ball to the conferences down-state.

Coach Kasch's men will fight every inch of the way to bring the Regional Tournament championship to Brainerd tonight. If they lose, it will be only after a hard struggle. The Appleton team is a determined outfit. They demonstrated this last night by overcoming a lead of nine points in the second quarter of the initial game against St. Cloud.

Wise was first to chalk up a count. Thirty seconds after play started, he was fouled and made the free throw. A combination play that started with Fuller and worked down the length of the floor with Wise passing to LaCourse under the basket gave Brainerd its first field goal. LaCourse slipped the cowhide into the Glenwood meshes on a neat overhead shot. A long shot by Irgens near center found its mark in the Brainerd cage a brief 40 seconds later and no sooner than the ball had been put in play again Wise worked his way through with short dribbles and scored for Brainerd. One minute later he again scored and followed up with still another one two minutes later. Irgens worked his way in through the local defense to sink one and LaCourse found the cage on a free throw as the quarter closed. Brainerd 16, Glenwood 6. Guin started the scoring in the second quarter when he received a

HEAVIEST SNOW BLANKET OF YEAR COVERS NEW YORK

SNOW AND WIND STORMS RAGE

SEABOARD

HARBOR TRAFFIC IMPAIRED,
HIGH WINDS WHIP
THE CITY

New York, March 10.—(U.P.)—The heaviest snow blanket of the season covered New York today while all along the eastern seaboard snow and wind storms raged.

Harbor traffic was impaired and telegraph service on Long Island was disrupted temporarily by the blizzard which ushered in one of the worst storms of the season Friday, after several days of spring-like weather.

High winds whipped New York and there was a blinding snow storm. Last night, however, the storm was reported to have passed over this area towards the northeast. It was believed centering off the Massachusetts coast where efforts were underway to rescue the 263 members of the crew and passengers on the stranded Robert E. Lee.

Storm warnings have been issued for the New England coast.

Four inches of snow fell in New York yesterday and last night, which was more than half as much snow fall as there has been all winter. Yesterday's storm came on about the 40th anniversary of one of the greatest blizzards that ever swept New York. On March 11, 1888, a storm started that lasted three days. Almost four feet of snow fell at that time.

Skies were murky this morning but the snow had stopped. The temperature was dropping slowly and predictions were for cold over Sunday.

The snow storm came as a boon to the unemployed of New York. This morning 16,000 men were to start cleaning the streets of the ankle-deep slush. The city's force of cleaners is but 8,000 and this means 8,000 of the unemployed will get jobs.

forward pass from Fuller, dribbled in and sunk a close in shot. A beautiful long distance shot from near center that caromed with incredible speed and accuracy from the backboard was made by Wise. Guin registered his second tally ten seconds later, and Hansen slipped one in from near center as the half ended. Brainerd 16, Glenwood 8.

LaCourse received the ball from the tip-off from Welliver at the start of the third quarter, passed to Guin, raced down the court and received a beautiful pass to complete the play in a score. Hansen tossed in a basket on a pass from Brendal. Wise made his fifth basket of the evening on a long shot. Gilbertson went through to score for Glenwood. The quarter came to a close as Burgan scored. Brainerd 20, Glenwood 14.

With a six-point lead Brainerd entered the final quarter. Guin started out by dropping in a free throw. Wise chalked up his sixth basket when he received a pass, Welliver to Fuller, Fuller to Guin, Guin to Wise. Hansen jumped high to grab a ball under the Brainerd cage and his shot was successful. Guin scored the last basket of the evening on a long shot with one minute to go. Final score: Brainerd 25, Glenwood 16.

Late Treasurer of the Republican National Committee, F. W. Upham, Destroyed His Books

HIS SECRETARY SO TESTIFIES AT THE HEARING

SENATE TEAPOT DOME COMMITTEE CONTINUES INVESTIGATIONS

UPHAM HAD DECIDED HIS BOOKS WERE OF NO FURTHER VALUE

By PAUL R. MALLON

(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Washington, March 10.—The late Fred W. Upham, treasurer of the republican national committee, destroyed his books just before the republican national convention of 1924 his secretary, Irl Hipsley, told the senate Teapot Dome committee today.

Before Hipsley took the stand, Sen. Walsh of Montana announced that A. V. Leonard of Chicago, wanted as a witness, had notified the committee that he will appear Tuesday. Process servers previously had been unable to find him.

Hipsley told the committee then Upham decided the books were of no further value.

"Inasmuch as he was not going to be treasurer of the committee any more, Upham ordered his books destroyed except a card index system," Hipsley said.

He said he may have handled Continental Trading Co. bonds for Upham but could not recall. He handled all Upham's securities but could not be certain Will H. Hays had turned over $60,000 of the bonds in November or December, 1923.

Hipsley denied knowing anything of distribution of bonds among prominent Chicago campaign contributors to convert into cash, and could not remember that Upham had given James A. Atten, Chicago wheat king, $25,000 of the bonds.

"I gave Patten a lot of securities because Upham had a private loan with Patten," Hipsley added. The witness said he was now connected with H. J. Budd & Co., Chicago, and was executor of the Upham estate. He could furnish no records of any liberty bond transactions, he said.

Washington, March 10.—A mysterious handwritten paper from the private files of the late John T. Pratt of New York was produced at the senate Teapot Dome investigation today.

The paper purported to note Pratt's handling of what were supposed to be Continental Trading Company liberty bonds, which Will Hays, former chairman of the republican national committee, received from Harry F. Sinclair, oil magnate.

The paper bore an unexplained notation "Weeks (a second name which was interpreted as "Andy") Butler and Dupont."

Hays has testified he gave Pratt $50,000 of the bonds from Sinclair and sent $25,000 to the late Secretary of War Weeks and $75,000 to Senator T. Coleman Dupont of Delaware to pay off the republican campaign debt.

Senator Walsh of Montana indicated the "Andy" might be interpreted to be Secretary of the Treasury Andrew W. Mellon and the "Butler" might be William M. Butler, chairman of the republican national committee since 1924.

Chairman Nye of the Teapot committee told the United Press he did not know whether Mellon and Butler would be called.

33 INDIANA PRESIDENTIAL PREFERENCE VOTES ARE SOUGHT

Indianapolis, March 10.—(U.P.)—Backed by a rousing send-off from the Indiana Republican Editorial Association, Sen. James E. Watson, went out today to fight it out with Herbert Hoover for the 23 Indiana presidential preference votes at the national republican convention.

The republican editors endorsed Watson's candidacy preceding their annual banquet last night. However, it was not a unanimous endorsement. Several delegates to the meeting were Hoover supporters.

Watson outlined his candidacy in a speech to the editors.

"I want it understood I am not a candidate in the interest of any other man but am a candidate in the interest of my own name," he said. "If I am nominated for the presidency, I shall want to run on a republican platform. I want to stand on a platform that declares for a protective tariff system; that will intend to preserve our independence of thought and action; that will insist on caring for the needs of the Mississippi valley, for flood relief, for farm relief, for the St. Lawrence waterway and all other interests in which our people believe and which up to this time they have been denied."

ALIEN PROPERTY BILL IS SIGNED BY PRES. COOLIDGE

PRESIDENT MAKES NO COMMENT ON SIGNING THE MEASURE

SUPPOSED YESTERDAY TO HAVE BEEN DISSATISFIED WITH RIDERS

Washington, March 10.—(U.P.)—President Coolidge signed the alien property bill today.

The president made no comment on signing the bill, although he was represented yesterday as being dissatisfied with certain riders attached to it which raised the salaries of legislative drafting clerks and certain treasury officials.

The bill, now law, provides for settlement of claims resulting from American seizure of alien property during the war. It provides full payment of claims of less than $100,000, and in claims above that amount, for eighty per cent payment now and the remainder later. It authorizes payment of $100,000,000 for seized German vessels, but only $50,000,000 of this can be paid this year.

The bill provides for the immediate return of 80 per cent of the German property, the remaining 20 per cent to be retained until settlement of claims by American citizens resulting from the world war. Austrian and Hungarian properties under the bill would be returned when those countries make arrangements for American claims payment.

HICKMAN AND HUNT ARE FOUND GUILTY OF FIRST DEGREE MURDER

Los Angeles, March 10.—(U.P.)—William Edward Hickman and his former bandit pal, Welby Hunt, were found guilty of first degree murder here today for the slaying of Ivy Toms. The jury recommended life imprisonment.

Hunt buried his face in his hands and sobbed his slight frame as the clerk of court read the verdict.

At the conclusion of the verdict Clerk Moore read an added statement recommending leniency for Hunt, although it has no legal weight.

Hickman retained his usual composure and appeared unaware that his blonde pal had broken down.

The verdict was returned after five hours and 47 minutes deliberation by a jury of six men and six women.

HIGH STRUNG MOTHER JAILED BY THE COURT

HAD DISCIPLINED HER DAUGHTER TRIFLE TOO SEVERELY

KANSAS CITY, KANSAS, GIRL BRINGS ASSAULT CHARGE AGAINST MOTHER

By GENE GILLETTE
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Kansas City, Kas., March 10.—(U.P.)—A high-strung mother was in jail here today for disciplining her daughter and the child was enjoying whatever satisfaction there may be in the knowledge that a rebellion against one's parent has been successful.

When Mrs. Charles Woodside appeared in court to answer charges of assault brought by her 16-year-old daughter Lorraine Jones, she was resigned. "If you brought this charge on your own account I'll willingly go to jail," said the mother, addressing her child on the witness stand.

"Did you?" she demanded. Lorraine nodded her head vaguely and started to reply but was checked. Evidently satisfied Mrs. Woodside said she would not testify in her own behalf.

"I waited too long before I tried to discipline her," Mrs. Woodside had said before the trial. She would, she said, do anything possible to bring about a settlement of the case.

In view of the fact there was no testimony for Mrs. Woodside offered, the judge unhesitatingly pronounced her guilty and ordered a fine of $100. The mother calmly slipped two diamond rings from her hand, gave them to her husband standing near, and said she was ready to "lay it out." "It will be 100 days," said the judge.

The whipping case had attracted wide interest after Mrs. Woodside offered to allow her daughter to whip her in retaliation if the court decreed it was fair punishment. Lorraine, she said, had not been thrown against the "seamy" side of life as her mother was when she was a child and it was not until too late that the girl's rebellious attitude was discovered she said.

The assault charges against the mother followed a breach of discipline on the part of the girl last Sunday when she went on an automobile ride. She returned and her mother is said to have beaten her with a clothes hanger. The weapon was introduced in evidence. It was broken.

Lorraine went to school next day and showed her bruises to her teacher. The charges followed.

PORTABLE SALOON SEIZED IN MILL CITY LAST NIGHT

Minneapolis, March 10.—(U.P.)—A portable saloon consisting of two copper containers modeled to fit the shoulders of the wearer was seized and the bartender, whom police say is Fred L. Warren is in custody following an attempt to serve a drink to a customer openly on a business street last night.

Detectives' attention were attracted by Warren's portly appearance and he was trailed to near his home where he attempted, police say, to serve a waiting customer with something to ward off the biting wind.

Attached to each of the copper tanks was a faucet through which the liquor was served. Each tank had a capacity of one gallon. A surplus of four pints of alleged liquor was found in the "saloon's" pockets, police reported.

STEAMSHIP ROBERT E. LEE IN DISTRESS

70 MILE AN HOUR GALE BLOWS VESSEL OFF HER COURSE

SHIP DRIVES HARD AND FAST ON ROCKS AT MANOMET POINT

By LAWRENCE DAY
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Manomet Point, Mass., March 10.—A motley fleet of coast guard vessels fought its way to the side of the Boston-New York steamship Robert E. Lee today in the hope of saving 263 passengers and crew whose lives were imperilled when the ship was driven hard and fast upon the jagged rocks of Mary Ann Reef.

The 70-mile an hour snow-laden gale which had blown the 5,000 ton steamer off her course at 8 P. M. Friday was abating somewhat at dawn. Coast guard officials said they believed the crew and the passengers could be taken off without loss of life.

First attempts at rescue were made by coast guardsmen from the Manomet station at 7:35 A. M. At that hour they tried to launch a surfboat to take off some of the steamer's wrecked passengers.

Direct communication with the grounded ship ceased at midnight. At that hour the Robert E. Lee's rapidly fading radio signals indicated she was in no immediate danger, although her engines were water-logged. Her main radio set was paralyzed when she struck the rocks.

Removal of the 150 passengers, who left Boston at 5 P. M. Friday expecting to reach New York at 8 A. M. today, awaited further abatement of the gale which would permit coast guard boats to come alongside.

The rocks on which the Robert E. Lee went aground are about a mile off Manomet Point, six miles below Plymouth on the inside of Cape Cod Bay. At this point, however, the bay is approximately 25 miles wide. Capt. H. W. Robinson of the Eastern steamship lines was in charge of the ship, is believed to have been attempting to steer a course as close as possible to shore to avoid the fury of the storm.

The coast guard station here recognized the ship's peril and attempted to warn her by signal lights as she nosed down the coast. The warning was too late. The Robert E. Lee was already fast upon the rocks, and in a few minutes her emergency radio set above decks was flashing out the first of the S. O. S. calls.

Coast guard stations all along the mainland of Massachusetts and on Cape Cod picked up the signals and began organizing their agencies of relief. Several 30-foot life boats put out from Manomet Point but were driven back by mountainous waves.

From the shore the lights of the Lee could be seen through the gaping hole the rocks had torn in her plates. Attempts were made to communicate with the ship by signal lights but there was no answer. Apparently the night was so thick that the crew of the Lee could not see the onshore lights.

After several unsuccessful attempts coast guardsmen launched a surfboat at 8:45 A. M. It could be seen several hundred feet off shore. Officers felt confident it would reach the stranded vessel, although rescue of any passengers was questionable owing to the heavy sea.

Boston, Mass., March 10.—It is hardly likely that an attempt by any of the navy vessels to transfer passengers from the steamer Robert E. Lee will be made this morning, it was said at the Boston navy yard.

The following message was received from the submarine tender Bushnell at 7:30 A. M.

"Seas still very rough. Must wait for sea to moderate before start taking passengers off."

The Bushnell, it was said at the navy yard, is acting as the flagship of the rescue fleet.

Shortly after 9 A. M. the coast guard cutter Paulding steamed out of the Boston navy yard to augment the fleet of rescue ships.

The Paulding was recently repaired after a collision with the submarine S-4 off Provincetown.

The republican editors endorsed Watson's candidacy preceding their annual banquet last night. However, it was not a unanimous endorsement. Several delegates to the meeting were Hoover supporters.

Watson outlined his candidacy in a speech to the editors. "I want it understood I am not a candidate in the interest of any other man but am a candidate in the interest of my own name," he said. "If I am nominated for the presidency, I shall want to run on a republican platform. I want to stand on a platform that declares for a protective tariff system; that will intend to preserve our independence of thought and action; that will insist on caring for the needs of the Mississippi valley, for flood relief, for farm relief, for the St. Lawrence waterway and all other interests in which our people believe and which up to this time they have been denied."

ALIEN PROPERTY BILL IS SIGNED BY PRES. COOLIDGE

PRESIDENT MAKES NO COMMENT ON SIGNING THE MEASURE

SUPPOSED YESTERDAY TO HAVE BEEN DISSATISFIED WITH RIDERS

Washington, March 10.—(U.P.)—President Coolidge signed the alien property bill today.

The president made no comment on signing the bill, although he was represented yesterday as being dissatisfied with certain riders attached to it which raised the salaries of legislative drafting clerks and certain treasury officials.

The bill, now law, provides for settlement of claims resulting from American seizure of alien property during the war. It provides full payment of claims of less than $100,000, and in claims above that amount, for eighty per cent payment now and the remainder later. It authorizes payment of $100,000,000 for seized German vessels, but only $50,000,000 of this can be paid this year.

The bill provides for the immediate return of 80 per cent of the German property, the remaining 20 per cent to be retained until settlement of claims by American citizens resulting from the world war. Austrian and Hungarian properties under the bill would be returned when those countries make arrangements for American claims payment.

HICKMAN AND HUNT ARE FOUND GUILTY OF FIRST DEGREE MURDER

Los Angeles, March 10.—(U.P.)—William Edward Hickman and his former bandit pal, Welby Hunt, were found guilty of first degree murder here today for the slaying of Ivy Toms. The jury recommended life imprisonment.

Hunt buried his face in his hands and sobbed his slight frame as the clerk of court read the verdict.

At the conclusion of the verdict Clerk Moore read an added statement recommending leniency for Hunt, although it has no legal weight.

Hickman retained his usual composure and appeared unaware that his blonde pal had broken down. The verdict was returned after five hours and 47 minutes deliberation by a jury of six men and six women.

HIGH STRUNG MOTHER JAILED BY THE COURT

HAD DISCIPLINED HER DAUGHTER TRIFLE TOO SEVERELY

KANSAS CITY, KANSAS, GIRL BRINGS ASSAULT CHARGE AGAINST MOTHER

By GENE GILLETTE
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Kansas City, Kas., March 10.—(U.P.)—A high-strung mother was in jail here today for disciplining her daughter and the child was enjoying whatever satisfaction there may be in the knowledge that a rebellion against one's parent has been successful.

When Mrs. Charles Woodside appeared in court to answer charges of assault brought by her 16-year-old daughter Lorraine Jones, she was resigned. "If you brought this charge on your own account I'll willingly go to jail," said the mother, addressing her child on the witness stand.

"Did you?" she demanded. Lorraine nodded her head vaguely and started to reply but was checked. Evidently satisfied Mrs. Woodside said she would not testify in her own behalf.

"I waited too long before I tried to discipline her," Mrs. Woodside had said before the trial. She would, she said, do anything possible to bring about a settlement of the case.

In view of the fact there was no testimony for Mrs. Woodside offered, the judge unhesitatingly pronounced her guilty and ordered a fine of $100. The mother calmly slipped two diamond rings from her hand, gave them to her husband standing near, and said she was ready to "lay it out." "It will be 100 days," said the judge.

The whipping case had attracted wide interest after Mrs. Woodside offered to allow her daughter to whip her in retaliation if the court decreed it was fair punishment. Lorraine, she said, had not been thrown against the "seamy" side of life as her mother was when she was a child and it was not until too late that the girl's rebellious attitude was discovered she said.

The assault charges against the mother followed a breach of discipline on the part of the girl last Sunday when she went on an automobile ride. She returned and her mother is said to have beaten her with a clothes hanger. The weapon was introduced in evidence. It was broken.

Lorraine went to school next day and showed her bruises to her teacher. The charges followed.

PORTABLE SALOON SEIZED IN MILL CITY LAST NIGHT

Minneapolis, March 10.—(U.P.)—A portable saloon consisting of two copper containers modeled to fit the shoulders of the wearer was seized and the bartender, whom police say is Fred L. Warren is in custody following an attempt to serve a drink to a customer openly on a business street last night.

Detectives' attention were attracted by Warren's portly appearance and he was trailed to near his home where he attempted, police say, to serve a waiting customer with something to ward off the biting wind.

Attached to each of the copper tanks was a faucet through which the liquor was served. Each tank had a capacity of one gallon. A surplus of four pints of alleged liquor was found in the "saloon's" pockets, police reported.

STEAMSHIP ROBERT E. LEE IN DISTRESS

70 MILE AN HOUR GALE BLOWS VESSEL OFF HER COURSE

SHIP DRIVES HARD AND FAST ON ROCKS AT MANOMET POINT

By LAWRENCE DAY
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Manomet Point, Mass., March 10.—A motley fleet of coast guard vessels fought its way to the side of the Boston-New York steamship Robert E. Lee today in the hope of saving 263 passengers and crew whose lives were imperilled when the ship was driven hard and fast upon the jagged rocks of Mary Ann Reef.

The 70-mile an hour snow-laden gale which had blown the 5,000 ton steamer off her course at 8 P. M. Friday was abating somewhat at dawn. Coast guard officials said they believed the crew and the passengers could be taken off without loss of life.

First attempts at rescue were made by coast guardsmen from the Manomet station at 7:35 A. M. At that hour they tried to launch a surfboat to take off some of the steamer's wrecked passengers.

Direct communication with the grounded ship ceased at midnight. At that hour the Robert E. Lee's rapidly fading radio signals indicated she was in no immediate danger, although her engines were water-logged. Her main radio set was paralyzed when she struck the rocks.

Removal of the 150 passengers, who left Boston at 5 P. M. Friday expecting to reach New York at 8 A. M. today, awaited further abatement of the gale which would permit coast guard boats to come alongside.

The rocks on which the Robert E. Lee went aground are about a mile off Manomet Point, six miles below Plymouth on the inside of Cape Cod Bay. At this point, however, the bay is approximately 25 miles wide. Capt. H. W. Robinson of the Eastern steamship lines was in charge of the ship, is believed to have been attempting to steer a course as close as possible to shore to avoid the fury of the storm.

The coast guard station here recognized the ship's peril and attempted to warn her by signal lights as she nosed down the coast. The warning was too late. The Robert E. Lee was already fast upon the rocks, and in a few minutes her emergency radio set above decks was flashing out the first of the S. O. S. calls.

Coast guard stations all along the mainland of Massachusetts and on Cape Cod picked up the signals and began organizing their agencies of relief. Several 30-foot life boats put out from Manomet Point but were driven back by mountainous waves.

From the shore the lights of the Lee could be seen through the gaping hole the rocks had torn in her plates. Attempts were made to communicate with the ship by signal lights but there was no answer. Apparently the night was so thick that the crew of the Lee could not see the onshore lights.

After several unsuccessful attempts coast guardsmen launched a surfboat at 8:45 A. M. It could be seen several hundred feet off shore. Officers felt confident it would reach the stranded vessel, although rescue of any passengers was questionable owing to the heavy sea.

Boston, Mass., March 10.—It is hardly likely that an attempt by any of the navy vessels to transfer passengers from the steamer Robert E. Lee will be made this morning, it was said at the Boston navy yard.

The following message was received from the submarine tender Bushnell at 7:30 A. M.

"Seas still very rough. Must wait for sea to moderate before start taking passengers off."

The Bushnell, it was said at the navy yard, is acting as the flagship of the rescue fleet.

Shortly after 9 A. M. the coast guard cutter Paulding steamed out of the Boston navy yard to augment the fleet of rescue ships.

The Paulding was recently repaired after a collision with the submarine S-4 off Provincetown.

An ounce of sugar a day or its equivalent in honey, sirup, candy or some other sweet is sufficient for a child, and not too much if served at the end of a meal, so as not to destroy the appetite for other more useful foods. The allowance should include sugar used in cooking and also that added to foods at the table.

Know Your Sweetheart by His Handwriting

By EDNA PURDY WALSH
Editor, Character Reading Magazine.

Is His Health Good?

The general physical health of a person reveals itself in lower loops of the letters g, f, y, for these will be either as long, or longer, than the loops above the line.

list myself

When the high letters above the line are large and the lower letters below are short, the individual is apt to be using his mental strength too rapidly for his physical energy or vitality.

The nature lover usually writes with long lower loops.

If we examine the letters of sick people, in the possession of the physician, we will note those with lung trouble so very often leave a little depression in the upper loops of b's, h's, l's.

Disturbances of the heart action are often noted in those whose writing is filled with three bent-down strokes of the letters. This may be due to wrong diet, which causes gas and irregular heart action. The acid-forming foods, such as white bread, pie, cake, and foods made from white sugar and white flour, are responsible for many ailments in their formation of gas, which only seem like heart trouble.

Note—Do not make final judgment until other signs in writing are studied. (Copyright.)

CANNED FOODS IN THE DAILY DIET

By E. V. McCollum, Ph. D., Sc.D.

Author of "The Newer Knowledge of Nutrition," "Food, Nutrition and Health," etc., Professor of Bio-chemistry, School of Hygiene, School of Hygiene and Public Health, Johns Hopkins University.

DURING the last twenty years a remarkable advance has been made in our knowledge of quality in foods, and of the nutritive needs of the body. We know in terms of chemical substances what constitutes an adequate diet. We know, in the case of nearly all of our more common and important foods, and with a fair degree of accuracy, which nutrient principles are abundant or deficient in each. It has been found, as our studies have progressed, that most of our ordinary foods which constitute the staple articles of our diet are one-sided in composition. One will contain an excess of certain essential food elements, and lack a sufficient amount of others. It has become evident that we must not condemn any food-stuff because it is not in itself a complete food.

If two foods, or several foods, each lacking in one or more indispensable food elements are combined in the proper proportions, one may furnish what another lacks, and so the mixture may be an excellent diet.

Foods Must Be Varied

All this is by way of saying that a diet restricted to a few articles, and monotonous in character, is likely to be unsatisfactory for the maintenance of health. The keynote to successful nutrition is the proper combination of foods. There are many illustrations in human nutrition of people suffering from ill health as a result of subsisting during the winter months on a diet of poor quality. Such an experience was common a generation or two ago when the middle west was being settled. Ready money was very scarce and the great objective of the farmers on their new homesteads was to produce crops which could be sold so that farm equipment, fences and buildings could be purchased. Often they subsisted during the winter season principally on refined wheat flour bread, molasses, and fat pork. Those were the times when everyone felt ill in the spring. People thought their blood became impure during the winter season and that they needed blood purifiers and other spring medicines. They took the patent medicines offered them by numerous quacks, but at the same time as spring advanced they began to eat a better diet, for wild herbs were gathered for "greens," the hens began to lay eggs and the half starved cows, when they began to get green grass, produced milk. The better food supply was sufficient to make everyone feel better, but credit was always given to the medicine which had been swallowed, and so, year after year, the same practice was repeated. What these pioneers needed was a more varied and better food supply during the winter months.

Science Comes to the Rescue

Science has come to the assistance of mankind in providing ways by which foods may be preserved for months or even years, thus making it possible for people to have a greater variety in the diet the whole year through. Canning, dehydration and cold storage are the principal means by which foods are preserved during the season of excess production, to be used mainly during the part of the year when otherwise we should be reduced to a simple and monotonous diet. A long list of fruits and green vegetables are most effectively preserved in a whole and attractive form, and for an almost indefinite period if necessary, through the process of canning. Several kinds of fish and meats, milk, etc., are also best put up in this form. No other method serves so well to conserve the delicate flavors of fruits and vegetables as does canning by modern processes.

In the early history of the canning industry, before methods were fully understood, there was considerable loss due to inadequate processes. Some canners used preservatives so that inferior products could be packed without danger of financial loss. Canned foods can be looked upon with suspicion by many. That day is now past. There is no industry with which we are familiar which has been more alert in the study of the science underlying the packing of foods in airtight containers, so as to send to the consumer products of the highest quality than has the canning industry. The National Canners' Association has invested large sums in research in some of the greatest universities, and it has for years maintained a research laboratory which has been conducted on the highest ethical principles.

A Clean Bill of Health

Canned foods are safe to eat. There was a time when there was a tendency to incriminate canned foods if possible whenever anyone suffered from food poisoning. Today one rarely hears such an accusation, for it is now known

Know Your Sweetheart
by His Handwriting

By EDNA PURDY WALSH

Editor, Character Reading Magazine.

Is His Health Good?

The general physical health of a person reveals itself in lower loops of the letters g, f, y, for these will be either as long, or longer, than the loops above the line like l, h. When the high letters above the line are large and the lower letters below are short, the individual is apt to be using his mental strength too rapidly for his physical energy or vitality. The nature lover usually writes with long lower loops.

If we examine the letters of sick people, in the possession of the physician, we will note how those with lung trouble so very often leave a little depression in the upper loops of b's, h's, l's.

Disturbances of the heart action are often noted in those whose writing is filled with thrice bent-down strokes of the letters. This may be due to wrong diet, which causes gas and irregular heart action. The acid-forming foods, such as white bread, pie, cake, and foods made from white sugar and white flour, are responsible for many ailments in their formation of gas, which only seem like heart trouble.

Note.—Do not make final judgment until other signs in writing are studied. (Copyright.)

BRAINERD POINTS TO MINNEAPOLIS

BRAINERD'S play the first night at Alexandria gives every indication that they will win tonight and then enter state play at the Minneapolis field house.

The Brainerd crowd was a thoughtful one. Cheering was scattered. The west side of the Alexandria armory seated solid rows of bleachers with Glenwood enthusiasts. They had their high school band plus two rooters. The Alexandria high school band, attired in snappy white uniforms and playing with wonderful precision and harmony, played during the evening.

Brainerd people had kept all sources of information tapped as to the best roads to Alexandria. The route Brainerd to Wadena and south on Trunk Highway No. 29 is in good shape with the exception of some light mud yesterday afternoon and rutty places, but the foundation of the road is hard. The distance is 97 miles and was easily made in three and a half hours.

The chartered bus taking the Brainerd players yesterday went by leisurely stages from Brainerd to St. Cloud and thence to Alexandria. Some Brainerd people took the road from Little Falls through Long Prairie and found it slow going.

The advance guard of Brainerd arrived shortly after the armory opened and saw the two games in full. Later contingents arrived at 8:30 p. m.

A notable in the field of university sport, Coach Spears, was introduced to the assembly and given an ovation. Just as he was about to say something, a long-legged, wild-eyed Glenwood cheer leader took the floor and appropriated the lime light.

The armory has more seating room than Atkin's. The few people standing were at the entrance. The Alexandria band had a special stage. The press section was well filled and all possible courtesies were shown the press. The hotel where the players stay is on the same street and but a short distance from the armory. Accommodations on the whole are of the best, attesting to the fact that Alexandria is proficient in handling regional play. In the long drive from Brainerd and back, no reports were received of any accidents.

Tonight all Brainerd centers interest on the play between Brainerd and Appleton. We hope most sincerely that Brainerd wins and that we can all tune up our cars and go to Minneapolis and sit in the field house and see Brainerd come out state champions.

The Western Union distinguished itself by handling the story of the game in excellent fashion. L. D. Peach, local manager, sent out 31 pep messages which came from prominent business and professional men and others, encouraging the team. Shop employees and depot employees also sent messages and helped to put the proper spirit in the Brainerd team.

JOBS FOR JOBBOLDERS

WE have often wondered what the government wanted with the mass of data and figures that it requires in determining the income tax of an individual corporation. The Minnesota Mascot seems to have discovered the reason—namely that about $50,000,000 worth of officials and clerks are required every year to take care of these details. The Mascot enlightens us in this manner:

No matter how small your business there is required some kind of a report of your activity. Your expenses, your business status, what you are doing and how you are doing it—these things are gathered together each year by that vast machine at Washington which seems to feed, and grow fat, on figures.

What they do with all these figures or why they want them one seems at a loss to find out. Perhaps they want to get out those pretty tables, graphs and the like, that we see so much of.

Census bureaus, government offices, credit associations, civic and commerce clubs, political organizations, all want to know how you run your business. And not infrequently do they attempt to tell you how it should be done.

Perhaps it is all necessary, but one does get a little tired of paying taxes, filling out income reports and catering to every investigatory whim that comes along.

If all the statisticians who are working day in and day out tabulating some of these needless facts and figures were "shown the gate" an item of $50,000,000 would be saved and we would be none the worse off.—Red Wing Eagle.

GOOD HUSBANDS

THE ideal husband, says a Long Island City girl, is "the one you never marry." Nevertheless this pessimistic view doesn't keep her from uniting with a group of girl friends and drawing up specifications for that hypothetical person, which may interest prospective husbands. Here they are:

A husband should be able to support his wife properly. He should possess good character, good education, mental and physical cleanliness, and good health. He should respect other persons. He should be sociable. He should have a purpose in life.

That is not bad at all, and we hope the young men of the nation will take immediate steps to square up with it.

One point of special interest, however, is this: The girls' first requirement is that a man should be a good provider. A high-brow economist might call that the "economic determinism of romance."

Don't worry, though, about romance. In spite of formal specifications, it will probably continue to have its way in as many specific cases as usual. A romantic mind can easily endow the object of its affections with all the requisite virtues.—Bemidji Sentinel.

NEW PRINCIPAL FOR ST. MARY'S HALL

WHEN Miss Amy Louise Lowey of St. Mary's hall, Faribault, leaves the institution July 1, she will terminate 12 years as principal. During this time she has become known to hundreds of northwest girls who attended the school.

Miss Norah E. Matheson, now associated with the Emma Willard school at Troy, N. Y., will be Miss Lowey's successor. Miss Matheson is a graduate of the University of Manitoba and taught in private schools for girls in Canada and the United States. Her father is the archbishop of Rupert's Land.

THE Minneapolis Civic and Commerce association has prepared a new booklet in colors which will be distributed from travel bureaus throughout the United States as well as among delegates to conventions which Minneapolis is attempting to bring to the Mill City.

SYNOPSIS

Buckwell, Frisco politician, seeks to secure valuable ancestral Vasquez property. His lawyer's nephew, Terry, loves Dolores Vasquez and exposes Buckwell's perfidy. Buckwell tries to wreck their love. Vasquez drops dead when Buckwell threatens eviction. Dolores and Terry expose Buckwell as Chinaman to avenge Vasquez. Buckwell kidnaps them, threatening Terry's life unless Dolores clears his name. She lies to save Terry, but later reveals the lie and saves Terry. Buckwell escapes to underworld den, forcing Dolores with him, where she is held a prisoner.

"There is one more chance," said the dwarf. "The Shrine of The Golden Door is an evil place that is frequented by my unworthy brother but I do not believe that even he would dare to risk taking the young lady to that infamous place."

"Buckwell would dare anything," replied Terry. "Come, let's try it." And with the dwarf pushing ahead they continued at a faster pace than before.

The iron door leading into the Den of a Thousand Sins blocked their progress. The dwarf knocked. The panel opened and the same wrinkled face of the old Chinese woman peered down upon them. She scowled. The dwarf spoke to her rapidly in Chinese but she scowled harder than ever. "Here, try this," said Terry and, reaching into his pocket, brought out a handful of gold coins and offered them to her. Her only reply was to slam the panel in their anxious faces.

"How much am I bid?" he smiled triumphantly.

"If Dolores is in there, we'll soon know it. Come on; we'll go back and get Lu Feng. He will know of a way to get inside." And Terry grasped the dwarf by the hand and fairly dragged him along as they rapidly retraced their steps.

CHAPTER XX

The Feast of Desire

It was a gala night in The Shrine of The Golden Door, or The Den of a Thousand Sins, as it was more popularly nicknamed. All the wealthy notables of Chinatown were gathered there to celebrate the annual Feast of Desire—a revel of exotic oriental splendor that aroused jaded appetites and opened tired eyes in eager anticipation.

Within the huge circular room was an enormous table placed directly in the center. It was laden with every conceivable kind of food. Overhead a great, heavy brass and crystal chandelier, ornate with scroll and dragon design, brilliantly illuminated the interior of the room.

Around the walls were soft, low divans strewn with bright silk cushions. Deep Persian rugs were spread about the floor and hung from the walls, where their soft, rich colors reflected and subdued the brilliant light in the center.

Upon the divans a dozen or more Chinamen lolled in luxury. Some were fat and gross; others lean, sallow and evil, but all were clad in the most magnificent and colorful gowns. In front of each divan was a small low table, handsomely inlaid with mother of pearl. Each table bore a brass tray upon which were placed candles and other Oriental sweetmeats, cigarettes and curious long-stemmed pipes.

At one side of the room where it could be viewed from all the divans was a cleared space where painted girls were swaying in wild abandon to the wailing music of a reed orchestra. Over it all arose the subtle aroma of heavy incense.

It was a scene at once so fantastic and bizarre that it was hard to believe that it occurred in a thriving city of the Western world.

The oldest loud speaker in the world has been discovered in Vienna, a megaphone used some 300 years ago by Count Rudiger to shout orders during a defense of the city, and still utilized by the Vienna fire brigade.—Musical America.

Your expenses, your business status, what you are doing and how you are doing it—these things are gathered together each year by that vast machine at Washington which seems to feed, and grow fat, on figures.

What they do with all these figures or why they want them one seems at a loss to find out. Perhaps they want to get out those pretty tables, graphs and the like, that we see so much of.

Census bureaus, government offices, credit associations, civic and commerce clubs, political organizations, all want to know how you run your business. And not infrequently do they attempt to tell you how it should be done.

Perhaps it is all necessary, but one does get a little tired of paying taxes, filling out income reports and catering to every investigatory whim that comes along.

If all the statisticians who are working day in and day out tabulating some of these needless facts and figures were "shown the gate" an item of $50,000,000 would be saved and we would be none the worse off.—Red Wing Eagle.

GOOD HUSBANDS

THE ideal husband, says a Long Island City girl, is "the one you never marry." Nevertheless this pessimistic view doesn't keep her from uniting with a group of girl friends and drawing up specifications for that hypothetical person, which may interest prospective husbands. Here they are:

A husband should be able to support his wife properly. He should possess good character, good education, mental and physical cleanliness, and good health. He should respect other persons. He should be sociable. He should have a purpose in life.

That is not bad at all, and we hope the young men of the nation will take immediate steps to square up with it.

One point of special interest, however, is this: The girls' first requirement is that a man should be a good provider. A high-brow economist might call that the "economic determinism of romance."

Don't worry, though, about romance. In spite of formal specifications, it will probably continue to have its way in as many specific cases as usual. A romantic mind can easily endow the object of its affections with all the requisite virtues.—Bemidji Sentinel.

NEW PRINCIPAL FOR ST. MARY'S HALL

WHEN Miss Amy Louise Lowey of St. Mary's hall, Faribault, leaves the institution July 1, she will terminate 12 years as principal. During this time she has become known to hundreds of northwest girls who attended the school.

Miss Norah E. Matheson, now associated with the Emma Willard school at Troy, N. Y., will be Miss Lowey's successor. Miss Matheson is a graduate of the University of Manitoba and taught in private schools for girls in Canada and the United States. Her father is the archbishop of Rupert's Land.

THE Minneapolis Civic and Commerce association has prepared a new booklet in colors which will be distributed from travel bureaus throughout the United States as well as among delegates to conventions which Minneapolis is attempting to bring to the Mill City.

"There is one more chance," said the dwarf. "The Shrine of the Golden Door is an evil place that is frequented by my unworthy brother but I do not believe that even he would dare to risk taking the young lady to that infamous place."

"Buckwell would dare anything," replied Terry. "Come, let's try it." And with the dwarf pushing ahead they continued at a faster pace than before.

The iron door leading into the Den of a Thousand Sins blocked their progress. The dwarf knocked. The panel opened and the same wrinkled face of the old Chinese woman peered down upon them. She scowled. The dwarf spoke to her rapidly in Chinese but she scowled harder than ever.

"Here, try this," said Terry and, reaching into his pocket, brought out a handful of gold coins and offered them to her. Her only reply was to slam the panel in their anxious faces.

"If Dolores is in there, we'll soon know it. Come on; we'll go back and get La Pao. He will know of a way to get inside." And Terry grasped the dwarf by the hand and fairly dragged him along as they rapidly retraced their steps.

CHAPTER XX

The Feast of Desire

It was a gala night in The Shrine of the Golden Door, or The Den of a Thousand Sins, as it was more popularly nicknamed. All the wealthy notables of Chinatown were gathered there to celebrate the annual Feast of Desire—a revel of exotic oriental splendor that aroused jaded appetites and opened tired eyes in eager anticipation.

Within the huge circular room was an enormous table placed directly in the center. It was laden with every conceivable kind of food. Overhead a great, heavy brass and crystal chandelier, ornate with scroll and dragon design, brilliantly illuminated the interior of the room.

Around the walls were soft, low divans strewn with bright silk cushions. Deep Persian rugs were spread about the floor and hung from the walls, where their soft, rich colors reflected and subdued the brilliant light in the center.

Upon the divans a dozen or more Chinamen lolled in luxury. Some were fat and gross; others lean, sallow and evil, but all were clad in the most magnificent and colorful gowns. In front of each divan was a small low table, handsomely inlaid with mother of pearl. Each table bore a brass tray upon which were placed candies and other Oriental sweetmeats, cigarettes and curious long-stemmed pipes.

At one side of the room where it could be viewed from all the divans was a cleared space where painted girls were swaying in wild abandon to the wailing music of a reed orchestra. Over it all arose the subtle aroma of heavy incense.

It was a scene at once so fantastic and bizarre that it was hard to believe that it occurred in a thriving city of the Western world.

Ancient

The oldest loud speaker in the world has been discovered in Vienna. A megaphone used some 300 years ago by Count Rudiger to shout orders during a defense of the city, and still utilized by the Vienna fire brigade.—Musical America.

Quotations' Great Value

The wisdom of the wise and the experience of ages may be preserved by quotations.—Disraeli.

The East with all its lure and charm was transplanted to that room with a truthfulness that could not be denied.

The music ceased its wailing. The dancers left the floor. Behind the orchestra the curtains parted and the slender graceful figure of a young girl darted onto the floor. Her beautiful body was but scantily clothed in a film of pale gauze. Her limbs were entirely bare and her luxuriant golden hair fell about her shoulders half revealing, half concealing the charming figure beneath.

The reed pipes took up their wailing. The dance began. The pleasure seeking Chinamen sat up with awakened interest. They followed every suggestive motion of the lithe swaying body as it displayed the wisdom of the ages in its interpretations. As the dance ended a low sibilant sound of in-drawn breaths was plainly audible. It was followed by a burst of applause as the dancer swiftly ran through the curtained doorway. The Chinamen moved restlessly.

From another doorway Buckwell entered, accompanied by the manager. They walked to the center of the room beside the food laden table. The manager held up his hand. Every eye was turned upon them. There was a dead silence.

"By the courtesy of this gentleman," he began indicating Buckwell, "we have arranged for your pleasure this evening something out of the line of our usual entertainment. Something different. There will be an auction. You are to have the opportunity of bidding upon one of the most exquisite jewels in existence." He paused dramatically. "Look!" he continued. They followed the direction of his outstretched arm.

A door opened and Dolores was thrust into the room. The door closed behind her.

She was dressed in a gorgeous tight-fitting gown that displayed every contour of her figure. Her lovely hair hung loosely about her shoulders. As she gazed at the scene before her, an agonizing look of horror crossed her face. She turned to flee but the door did not budge as she tried to force it.

Buckwell advanced toward her with a smile of appreciation for her appearance.

The manager grinned broadly. All around the room the Chinamen sat up in eager interest.

The manager and Buckwell escorted Dolores to the banquet table. Helpless and terrified she looked around at the eager, vice-marked faces turned toward her. In vain she sought for an avenue of escape, for the sign of one friendly face. Bowing her head in shame and mortification she sobbed convulsively. But there was no pitying response. Nothing but a sea of faces and eyes that burned with desire and greed.

The manager cleared a space in the center of the table. Buckwell climbed upon it and lifted Dolores after him. Then he faced the pleasure seekers and raising his hand for silence asked, "How much am I bid?" he smiled triumphantly as he looked down from the improvised auction block. "Who wants this lovely dove of virtue and beauty?"

Dolores shuddered. Buckwell noticed and smirked at her in contempt.

"Fifty thousand dollars!" Buckwell eyed the bidder with disdain.

"One hundred thousand dollars," said another emphatically.

"Two hundred thousand," bid another, a shriveled Chinaman.

Buckwell became interested. "Think, gentlemen, where have you ever beheld such a paragon of youthful beauty and virtue and all I'm offered is a paltry two hundred thousand dollars. Why that amount would scarcely pay for jewels to decorate her slender throat."

The bidding slowed up. But it did not mean that interest in the girl on the block had abated. She was desirably beyond question. Buckwell turned from one to the other of the active bidders—heckling—cajoling.

"Five hundred thousand dollars!" The bidder, a heavy portly Chinaman, grinned in anticipation of his success.

The excitement was acute. This was an enormous sum. A fortune in itself. Buckwell was very pleased.

Another figure arose and approached the table. A tall gaunt Chinaman with a hideous pock-marked face. His eyes were fairly aglitter with lust. There was a pause. Buckwell watched him intently for a bid.

The Chinaman scrutinized Dolores from head to foot. She shrank away from him in stark terror and looked pleadingly at Buckwell. But he ignored her and catching the route's eye, waited patiently.

"One million dollars!" bid the old Chinaman in a clear voice. (To be continued.)

Virginia Led in Cotton

It is said that when Christopher Columbus discovered America in 1492 he found the cotton plant growing wild, but the earliest effort to cultivate it in what is now the United States was in 1621, in what is now the state of Virginia.

HOME TALENT PLAY ACCLAIMED BEST

"Anne, What's Her Name" Presented by Lowell P. T. A. at U. C. T. Auditorium

PLAYERS HEARTILY PRAISED
Comedy Complications Winds Up in Happy Arrangement

That "Anne, What's Her Name" presented by the Lowell P. T. A. was the best home talent play ever put on in Brainerd for a number of years is the unbiased verdict of the audience that turned out last night at the U. C. T. auditorium. A full house greeted the players who so ably mastered the play. The plot opened with Anthony Wheat, played by George Bekholder, who is a victim of circumstances getting into the wrong house and is mistaken for a cousin of the Bunby family. In trying to find some means of escape he is forced to play a dual role which only complicates matters so that by the time the doctor comes to operate he is fairly desperate. The operation turns into wedding with an unknown girl by the name of Anne who afterwards turns out to be Wheat's fiancée. The arrival of the real cousin saves the situation.

Mooney the temperamental maid, was played exceptionally well by Edna Anderson, who swept the audience with gales of laughter and Grandma, who was eighty-two years of age but still possessed young ideas was played with rare ability by Mrs. Cora Cook, was a great delight to the audience. Mr. Bekholder as Anthony Wheat won the hearts of all.

The balance of the cast deserves great praise for their ease of manner in handling the play which includes J. E. Crust, Miss Alta Holde, Mrs. Elmer Forsberg, Miss Astrid Olson, Henry Viken, Elmer Forsberg, Miss Violet Stanley, Frank Kaufman, Miss Ruth Templeton, Miss Ida Graetz, James Clark and Margaret Marie Gronquist.

The committees who made such a success of the play were Mrs. J. E. Crust, general chairman; Mrs. Kelly, tickets; G. H. Bekholder, programs; Mrs. Elmer Forsberg, publicity; ushers, Miss Marie Stein; Door managers, R. W. Crust and W. C. Rasch; properties, H. O. Forsberg; director Miss Edna Anderson; and the music was furnished by the Merry Makers.

Free Throw Score Wins
The dope bucket was almost upset in the initial clash of the evening. The favored Appleton quint came so near taking a defeat at the hands of the St. Cloud Tech-High that the Appleton fans are still gasping.

Loose guarding on the part of the winners gave St. Cloud the opportunity to go through for three baskets to gain a lead of nine points in the first quarter. A reversal of form on the part of last year's champions brought the score up to 13 to 10 for St. Cloud at the half. From then on St. Cloud and Appleton played on more even terms with Person, all-state guard last year, breaking the tie in the last 30 seconds of play when he scored on a free throw.

Person, left guard, was the greatest threat Appleton had to offer. Rose, who had been subbed on the St. Cloud team all year, was high point man of the game with two field goals and three free throws.

STOCK MARKET MAKES NEW HISTORY

New York, March 10.—(UP)—In unprecedented short session activity millions were made and lost today on the stock exchange as General Motors, Radio, Westinghouse Electric, and a long list of the highest grade stocks soared to new high levels.

Sales exceeded 2,000,000 shares for the first time in history of a Saturday half-day session. Tickers were swamped with the avalanche of trading, running far behind the market at the close.

New York, March 10.—Today's stock market made a new history. Trading broke all records for a Saturday session, running close to the two-million mark. General Motors soared to the highest price it has ever reached. Radio Corporation set a new peak for all time. Turnover was tremendous in issues mentioned and some of the other industrials accounted for large volume of business.

Stock Exchange ticker facilities were strained to the utmost, the tape falling behind the deluge of sales which were coming out so fast that statisticians were unable to compile tables at their usual speed.

Excited trading in General Motors sent the issue to a record at 161, up 1-4 from yesterday's close. A single transaction of 20,000 shares at 160 was made at the outset while 25,000 shares of radio sold at 114, both involving millions.

Radio got to 116 3/4, up 9 points, and U. S. Steel gained more than a point at one time. The whole industrial list was carried sharply higher in the early dealings and rails held fairly well.

During the late first hour and beginning of the second hour, heavy profit-taking made itself felt, causing sharp recessions in leading issues. A recovery, however, immediately set in.

QUALITY CANNED FOODS DRIVE

Merchants Will Feature Better Brands in Store Display and Advertising

LETTER "Q" IS SYMBOL
Campaign Now Under Way Will Continue Through March and April

"Buy Quality Canned Foods" is the nation-wide slogan in a big six weeks advertising campaign launched throughout the country.

Manufacturers and canners of all the better grades of Canned Foods are working directly with retail grocers, wholesale distributors and chain grocers to drive home to the millions of housewives who purchase the country's food supplies the proven fact that it pays to buy Canned Foods for quality as well as price.

Large space advertisements prepared by the General Committee in charge of this, the greatest food-selling campaign ever attempted on a national scale, will appear in magazines and newspapers from coast to coast. Readers will be able to identify every advertisement by the big letter "Q", which has been selected as the symbol of the entire campaign. This letter will appear in all the advertisements, in all retail grocers window posters and store display material.

Merchants have agreed to feature their better brands of canned foods during this drive. They will be pleased to explain the difference in quality between the different grades and prices of their canned goods.

The greater tenderness and food value, the finer flavor and more delicious taste of the select and fancy pack Canned Foods will be fully explained. The campaign will prove to housewives generally that it is true economy to buy the fancy grades of foods to add variety to their menus and tempt the family appetite so well that waste of foods is eliminated.

HOME TALENT PLAY ACCLAIMED BEST

"Anne, What's Her Name" Presented by Lowell P. T. A. at U. C. Auditorium

PLAYERS HEARTILY PRAISED
Comedy Complications Winds Up in Happy Arrangement

That "Anne, What's Her Name" presented by the Lowell P. T. A. was the best home talent play ever put on in Brainerd for a number of years is the unbiased verdict of the audience that turned out last night at the U. C. T. auditorium. A full house greeted the players who so ably mastered the play. The plot opened with Anthony Wheat, played by George Berkholder, who is a victim of circumstances getting into the wrong house and is mistaken for a cousin of the Bunby family. In trying to find some means of escape he is forced to play a dual role which only complicates matters so that by the time the doctor comes to operate he is fairly desperate. The operation turns into wedding with an unknown girl by the name of Anne who afterwards turns out to be Wheat's fiancée. The arrival of the real cousin saves the situation.

Mooney the temperamental maid, was played exceptionally well by Edna Anderson, who swept the audience with gales of laughter and Grandma, who was eighty-two years of age but still possessed young ideas was played with rare ability by Mrs. Cora Cook, was a great delight to the audience. Mr. Berkholder as Anthony Wheat won the hearts of all.

The balance of the cast deserves great praise for their ease of manner in handling the play which includes J. E. Crust, Miss Alta Holde, Mrs. Elmer Forsberg, Miss Astrid Olson, Henry Viken, Elmer Forsberg, Miss Violet Stanley, Frank Kaufman, Miss Ruth Templeton, Miss Ida Graetz, James Clark and Margaret Marie Gronquist.

The committees who made such a success of the play were Mrs. J. E. Crust, general chairman; Mrs. Kelly, tickets; G. H. Berkholder, programs; Mrs. Elmer Forsberg, publicity; ushers, Miss Marie Stein; Door managers, R. W. Crust and W. C. Rasch; properties, H. O. Forsberg; director Miss Edna Anderson; and the music was furnished by the Merry Makers.

Free Throw Score Wins

The dope bucket was almost upset in the initial clash of the evening. The favored Appleton quint came so near taking a defeat at the hands of the St. Cloud Tech-High that the Appleton fans are still gasping.

Loose guarding on the part of the winners gave St. Cloud the opportunity to go through for three baskets to gain a lead of nine points in the first quarter. A reversal of form on the part of last year's champions brought the score up to 13 to 10 for St. Cloud at the half. From then on St. Cloud and Appleton played on more even terms with Person, all-state guard last year, breaking the tie in the last 30 seconds of play when he scored on a free throw.

Person, left guard, was the greatest threat Appleton had to offer. Rose, who had been subbed on the St. Cloud team all year, was high point man of the game with two field goals and three free throws.

The box score follows:

STOCK MARKET MAKES NEW HISTORY

New York, March 10.—(UP)—In unprecedented short session activity millions were made and lost today on the stock exchange as General Motors, Radio, Westinghouse Electric, and a long list of the highest grade stocks soared to new high levels.

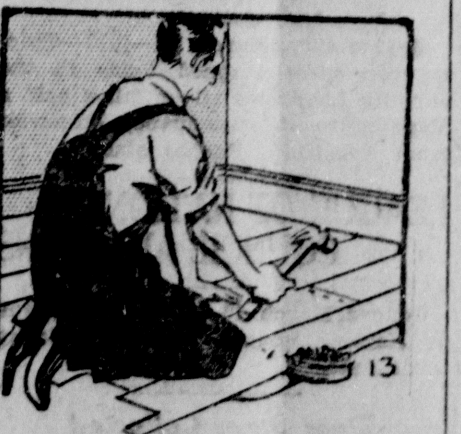

Sales exceeded 2,000,000 shares for the first time in history of a Saturday half-day session. Tickers were swamped with the avalanche of trading, running far behind the market at the close.

New York, March 10.—Today's stock market made a new history. Trading broke all records for a Saturday session, running close to the two-million mark. General Motors soared to the highest price it has ever reached, Radio Corporation set a new peak for all time. Turnover was tremendous in issues mentioned and some of the other industrials accounted for large volume of business. Stock Exchange ticker facilities were strained to the utmost, the tape falling behind the deluge of sales which were coming out so fast that statisticians were unable to compile tables at their usual speed.

Excited trading in General Motors sent the issue to a record at 161, up 1 1/4 from yesterday's close. A single transaction of 20,000 shares at 160 was made at the outset while 25,000 shares of radio sold at 114, both involving millions.

Radio got to 116 3/4, up 9 points, and U. S. Steel gained more than a point at one time. The whole industrial list was carried sharply higher in the early dealings and rails held fairly well.

During the late first hour and beginning of the second hour, heavy profit-taking made itself felt, causing sharp recessions in leading issues. A recovery, however, immediately set in.

141 RUNNERS REMAIN IN THE LONG FOOTRACE

SET OUT TODAY ON HEAT ENDING FIRST WEEK'S TOIL

$48,500 IN AWARDS IS BASED UPON TIME ELAPSED

By JIM POWERS
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Bagdad, Mojave Desert, Cal., March 10.—(U.P.)—As the 141 runners remaining in C. C. Pyle's transcontinental footrace, set out today on the heat that was to end their first week's journey, Arthur Newton, 44-year-old Briton, held a time lead.

The veteran's low mark for the first six days of the run, a 207 mile journey from Los Angeles to Bagdad, was 31 hours and 2 minutes. The $48,500 in awards for the Los Angeles to New York trek will be based upon time elapsed.

Olli Wanttinen, the 96-pound Finn, stood second in time elapsed as the field set out today for Fenner, 44 miles away. He had required 32 hours, 13 minutes and 7 seconds to reach Bagdad.

Ed Gardner, the Seattle negro, was third with 34 hours, 1 minute and 36 seconds.

After leading in the early hours of yesterday's lap, Gardner stopped at Ludlow for refreshments and a change of shoes. Newton passed him and Gardner finished second.

Andrew Payne, the youth from Claremore, Okla., finished third yesterday to take fourth place with an elapsed time of 34 hours, 6 minutes and 22 seconds.

The race has left its mark on many of the athletes already. Numerous of them are footsore and their legs are bandaged.

They are given the best of care and are examined each day by the caravan's doctors.

The runners rest for a time after breakfast before starting on the day's jog.

When the tired athletes reach the night control point they find rubbers, hot showers and beds awaiting them. They are given an hour's rest before eating.

Sleeping accommodations are excellent. A huge tent provides quarters for 250 persons.

Pyle, his personal staff and newspaper correspondents, live aboard his $25,000 land yacht. The interior of the cruiser resembles that of a Pullman car. Eight persons are accommodated inside the vehicle and eight on the canvas enclosed roof.

Two meals a day in the cook tent and one on the road are given each runner. A supply car, carrying hot

141 RUNNERS REMAIN IN THE LONG FOOTRACE

SET OUT TODAY ON HEAT ENDING FIRST WEEK'S TOIL

$48,500 IN AWARDS IS BASED UPON TIME ELAPSED

By JIM POWERS
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Bagdad, Mojave Desert, Cal., March 10.—(U.P.)—As the 141 runners remaining in C. C. Pyle's transcontinental footrace, set out today on the heat that was to end their first week's journey, Arthur Newton, 44-year-old Briton, held a time lead.

The veteran's low mark for the first six days of the run, a 207 mile journey from Los Angeles to Bagdad, was 31 hours and 2 minutes. The $48,500 in awards for the Los Angeles to New York trek will be based upon time elapsed.

Olli Wautinen, the 96-pound Finn, stood second in time elapsed as the field set out today for Fenner, 44 miles away. He had required 32 hours, 13 minutes and 7 seconds to reach Bagdad.

Ed Gardner, the Seattle negro, was third with 34 hours, 1 minute and 26 seconds.

After leading in the early hours of yesterday's lap, Gardner stopped at Ludlow for refreshments and a change of shoes. Newton passed him and Gardner finished second.

Andrew Payne, the youth from Claremore, Okla., finished third yesterday to take fourth place with an elapsed time of 34 hours, 6 minutes and 22 seconds.

The race has left its mark on many of the athletes already. Numerous of them are footsore and their legs are bandaged.

They are given the best of care and are examined each day by the caravan's doctors.

The runners rest for a time after breakfast before starting on the day's jog.

When the tired athletes reach the night control point they find rubbers, hot showers and beds awaiting them. They are given an hour's rest before eating.

Sleeping accommodations are excellent. A huge tent provides quarters for 250 persons.

Pyle, his personal staff and newspaper correspondents, live aboard his $25,000 land yacht. The interior of the cruiser resembles that of a pullman car. Eight persons are accommodated inside the vehicle and eight on the canvas enclosed roof.

Two meals a day in the cook tent and one on the road are given each runner. A supply car, carrying hot coffee, cold drinks and sandwiches patrols the route.

The runners frequently trot along together, conversing at intervals and stopping at the same time for food or medical attention.

At night, while the carnival is in progress, they are kept in the sleeping tent by the caravan's police staff, headed by Stephen Owens, captain of the New York national professional football team.

His aides are "Bullet" Baker, "Red" Grange and "Red" Flaherty.

With Pyle Caravan, Amboy, Calif., March 10.—Arthur Newton of Rhodesia, Africa, still was leading the field of transcontinental marathoners as they passed through here today en route from Bagdad to Essex, the seventh control point.

Eddie Gardner, Seattle negro, set the pace until this desert hamlet was reached, but the Englishman stepped out in front as the leaders jogged away.

A blistering sun beat down upon the 145 runners who left Bagdad this morning.

P. Gavuzzi, Italian runner, with the Cockney accent, was in third place at this point.
